

FACULTY OF ARTS

GERMAN STUDIES

German Studies focuses on the language, literature, and culture of Germany, Austria, and Switzerland.

The German Studies program in the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures offers up-to-date, effective language instruction for beginners through to advanced students.

Even if you have no prior knowledge of German, it is possible to begin and complete a degree in German Studies. Many students choose to combine a degree in this area with a related field such as English, French, History, or Education. Even if you do not major in German Studies, taking courses in this area will enrich your education and can be used to meet the Humanities Requirement. Courses in German culture and literature are available in both English and German.

This program leads to a Bachelor of Arts degree (3-year or 4-year) with a Major in German Studies.

Students taking an undergraduate degree in another Major may choose to add a Minor in German Studies as a secondary area of interest.

SAMPLE CAREERS

German Studies graduates may find employment in a variety of areas, from teaching to library science, from publishing to travel and hospitality. Knowledge of the German language and culture is an asset for any career involving international trade and communications, such as business administration, marketing, the arts and media, government, and diplomacy.

SAMPLE COURSES

Introductory German is a first-year course for students with little or no previous knowledge of German. This course provides a solid base in vocabulary, grammar, and pronunciation. Small conversation classes help students learn practical applications of the language in communication.

German Culture through Film uses German feature films to help students develop their language skills and learn about the culture and history of German-speaking Europe since the 1920s.

German Culture I and II are courses that survey the cultural history of German-speaking Europe from the Middle Ages to Romanticism and from Romanticism to the present. Slides, films, and music recordings help to present developments in art, architecture, music, and their social contexts.
